

Blodgett Dental Care

Converting a former industrial site into a 5,000-square-foot dental office provided a serious challenge: identify the complete project budget in a way that enabled Dr. Blodgett to juggle the costs of the specific needs of his dental practice with the required building upgrades and fees arising from the change of use.

“The results greatly surpassed my expectations. Norwest provided unparalleled service and great value for our money. With our old, 5,000-square-foot industrial building, we had to deal with rezoning, extensive seismic upgrades, changes to the storefront, and historical issues. Norwest handled all of it. They were up front about the cost of the project, and their bid was consistent with the final pricing. Throughout the job, they kept me well informed of their progress, and it went very smoothly.”
